

PASADENA NEWS.

A CLOUDY DAY BRINGS LITTLE NEWS.

Children's Day at the Methodist Church—Interesting Local Budget—Gleanings Here and There—Personal Gossip.

PASADENA, June 16.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Children's day was observed with appropriate services in the Methodist Episcopal Tabernacle this morning at 11 o'clock. The attendance was very large, such as usually gather at all meetings of this church. The Sunday-school scholars occupied front seats in the auditorium, and took a prominent part in the services. The choir for the occasion was augmented, and rendered some very choice selections.

The floral display was unusually handsome, the pulpit and choir-loft resembling a veritable Garden of Eden. The sweet magnolia, beautiful daisies, tall calla lilies and variegated colored roses, and dozens of other kinds of flowers spread their fragrance everywhere.

The services opened with an anthem by the choir, entitled "That Beautiful Gate," which was very well rendered. Hymn No. 2, "Crown Him, ye Children, Jesus is King," was then sung by the congregation, led by the school. Prayer was next offered by J. F. Church, who invoked the divine blessing for the day, which had been set apart for the children.

Rev. P. F. Breesee then read the first Psalm, which was followed by the singing of the hymn, "Fling It Out, the Royal Banner."

Supr. C. M. Parker then arose and made the announcement that the exercises by the children would be held this evening, to which all were invited.

The usual morning services were dispensed with, and Rev. Gaskell of Trenton, N. J., was introduced, who made a short address, in which he alluded to the rich harvest of the virgin soil of this climate, drawing a striking comparison to the valuable harvest in the work of Jesus Christ.

J. J. Reynolds was then called upon, making his remarks chiefly to the young people, in whom the speaker has always taken a deep interest, especially in their spiritual welfare.

The congregation then sang "I Will Sing of My King," after which Rev. P. F. Breesee addressed the young people from the second chapter of I Samuel, the 18th and 19th verses. He urged them to be good, and advised them to stick close to their mother's counsel.

Those folks in Pasadena who want saloons are not your friends, neither have the home people done any credit to themselves in the past week in upholding this evil.

Rev. A. Healy interrupted the speaker, asking the boys if they thought it right to fly kites on Sunday. This brought out the lesson, the commandments, in reciting which he urged the boys to throw away the vile cigarette and be manfully in deportment.

While the hymn, "What Is Jesus Doing?" was being sung a number of children were brought forward to the altar by their parents to be baptized. After the benediction the large audience was dismissed.

On Thursday evening and for the first time, it is reported, will be presented. It treats of life among the gentry and is founded upon the legend of All-Hallowe'en, that if a maid looks into a well on snap-apple night, she will see the face of her lover or future husband.

The scenery in The Fairy's Well is extremely realistic. One scene represents a mountain pass over which a torrent of real water dashes. The rescue of a man who has fallen into this stream is one of the exciting features of the play. Both plays will be interpreted by an excellent company, and are revelations of pictures of the refined side of life in the "Emerald Isle."

Manager Wyatt will take his annual benefit Thursday evening, and judging from the number of tickets sold up to date the prospects are that the house will be packed.

Modjeska will tour the Pacific Coast with the late Booth and Barrett Company as her support.

Fred Hewitt writes that every thing is away up with the Yaver-Cleveland Minstrels. Fred is a hard worker and a popular young man. He has the best wishes for his future success by all his late associates in this city, as well as his numerous friends in the theatrical world.

The burning of the opera-house at Seattle will make a change in the routes of all the companies coming to the Pacific Coast.

Miss Norma Ferner, leading lady with the Twelve Temptations Company, which plays Los Angeles a visit in July, is a native of this city. Since adopting the stage as her profession, Miss Ferner has made rapid progress, and is fast working her way to the top of the ladder. Los Angeles should turn out in force to welcome this little lady on her first appearance in the city as a professional.

Mrs. Jefferys Lewis is looking for a divorce. If she obtains it Harry Mainhall will not have to take his usual run to the foothills in the morning.

On May 27th John W. Norton of St. Louis, Mo., obtained a divorce from his wife, Emma S. Norton (professionally known as Emma Stockton), who ran away about a year ago with Henry W. Moore, who was at the time managing editor of the Post-Dispatch of St. Louis. Mrs. Norton and Moore are both of New York city. The former becoming tired of her part in the affair has left Moore, who is at present working on one of the newspapers in that city.

The Tycoon Opera Company, which became a stanch favorite on its recent visit to Los Angeles, did a big business in Pittsburgh the week of May 28th.

At Leavenworth, Kan., last week, there was a misunderstanding between Miss Myra Goodwin's manager and the manager of the house at which she was playing about the payment for some seats. Miss Goodwin's manager refused to let the curtain go up, when the little lady stepped before the curtain, and said she would pay for the seats herself, and the play went on. It is a pity things can't be settled in a box office without letting the whole country know that either one or the other of the managers did not know his business.

ALMOST A MURDER.

A Jealous Negro Attempts to Kill His Sweetheart.

Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock a woman's screams for help were heard in a small brick house, at No. 110 Aliso street, just below Alameda. Officer Dugan ran to the place, and just as he arrived a negro named Charley Harper made his way out of the house and started off on a dead run, with Dugan in pursuit. Dugan fired a couple of shots at the negro, for the purpose of scaring him, which attracted the attention of Officer Flynn, who joined in the chase, and finally ran him down. In the meantime, a large crowd had gathered in the vicinity, and an investigation showed that one of the inmates, a mulatto woman named Mrs. Brown, had been a very narrow escape from death at the hands of Harper. The negro, it seems, had become enamored of the woman, and wanted her to live with him. She refused, and yesterday Harper went to the woman's house, and, after some talk, told her that if she would not live with him she should not live with any one. She again refused, when he threw the woman over on the bed and almost choked the life out of her, the blood gushing from her ears, nose and mouth. Not satisfied with this, he took a leather pass-book and stuffed it into her mouth. Another woman who lives in the house saw the performance through the window, and raised the alarm which resulted in bringing the officers.

Harper is considered to be a very tough character. He came here from Chicago about four months ago, and has since been gambling and living by his wits. He will probably get a long sentence, as the woman is pretty badly hurt, and it is believed that he intended to murder her, and would have succeeded had not aid promptly arrived.

THE DRAMA.

The "Ivy Leaf" Company to Open for a Week of Irish Drama.

Miss Mattie Vickers and her excellent company closed their engagement last night at the Los Angeles Theater and left at 11 o'clock for the north. The company played to good houses all the week and left feeling satisfied that Los Angeles is the best show town on the Pacific Coast.

The Los Angeles Theater will remain closed this week, and will be opened next Monday evening by Wyatt's English Opera Company in Maritana. The company is in active rehearsal, and the opera ought to be put on in good style.

This evening the Ivy Leaf Company will open a week's engagement at the Grand. The Ivy Leaf is an Irish drama that appeals to the better class of theater-goers. There is no superfluous dialogue, and the wit is natural and spontaneous. There is no harrowing picture of Ireland's past, and it is pervaded with a spirit of Irish sentiment which is unmistakable; and while it pleases all classes of theater-goers it will appeal with exceptional force to the hearts of Irishmen who still cherish one spark of love for the land of their ancestors.

The play is replete with a number of exciting situations. Among these are the carrying off of a child by an eagle to an almost inaccessible crag, from which she is rescued by the hero. Another is the leap from the tower, where the hero has been locked by the villain of the play. He jumps from the window and catching the ivy breaks his fall and reaches the ground, where an execution is to take place, in time to save the life of the prisoner and establish his innocence. The play will be illustrated by a cartoon of beautiful pictures from sketches taken in Ireland of places of interest where the action of the drama occurs. Incidental solos, duets and quartettes of Irish songs by trained voices, characteristic reels and jig dancing by excellent artists, and a genuine Irish bagpiper will be introduced, making in all an ideal performance of an Irish drama.

On Thursday evening and for the first time, it is reported, will be presented. It treats of life among the gentry and is founded upon the legend of All-Hallowe'en, that if a maid looks into a well on snap-apple night, she will see the face of her lover or future husband.

As we have previously remarked, the

THE INSANE ASYLUM SITE.

A San Diego man told a Sacramento Bee reporter, the other day, that the Southern California Insane Asylum Commissioners had agreed upon a site back of San Bernardino, "where it is so hot that hell would make a refrigerator for it." Upon the reporter's remarking that the Governor had not yet confirmed the site, the San Diego man replied that Waterman had selected the commission to suit himself, and the commission had selected a site to suit the Governor. We don't know what truth there is in this statement, but trust, for the sake of the unfortunate who will be confined there, that it is unfounded. When it was first announced that the site was to be in San Bernardino county, we drew attention to the importance of selecting an elevated and therefore comparatively cool location.

If the commissioners have indeed selected a site for the Insane Asylum a place which has the summer climate of San Bernardino and Riverside, they are guilty of an act of great inhumanity, of which they should be heartily ashamed, and Mr. Waterman will share their guilt should he confirm their choice. There are plenty of healthy, elevated locations in the mountains of San Bernardino county, although, perhaps, the selection of such a site would not put money in anyone's purse. In a case like this, however, in which the comfort, if not the life, of unfortunate men and women is concerned, the most fundamental dictates of humanity should lead to the sinking of mere mercenary motives.

THE OHIO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

A week from today the Ohio Republican State Convention meets at Columbus. This is one of the most important conventions ever held in Ohio, and is exciting more than the usual amount of interest among the intelligent citizens of the State which has furnished so many contributions to the list of the Nation's eminent men.

At the coming convention, a full State ticket, as well as members of the Legislature, and unusually full county tickets are to be voted for. The Ohio State Journal has been sending out a large number of circulars, for the purpose of obtaining an expression of opinion as to the people's choice for Governor. The result of this canvass shows that Gen. Kennedy is largely in the lead; Speaker Samson also has a strong following, which is equally earnest, and those in favor of Gen. Dawes, Judge O'Neal, Congressman Morey and others are also enthusiastic for their favorites. While Gov. Foraker is not a candidate, yet he stands second in the list of preferences that are expressed in the returns sent to the journal in question.

It is gratifying to note the statement that factional fights have spent their forces, and that the Republicans of Ohio, on the eve of their State Convention, whatever they may be.

THE FEDERAL OFFICES.

It has been heretofore announced that the following recommendations for Federal appointments in Los Angeles have been agreed upon between Representative Vandever, Senator Stanford and perhaps some other members of the California Congressional delegation, viz: For Postmaster, J. W. Green; for Register of the Land Office, W. H. Seamans; for Receiver of Public Money, C. D. Ambrose of Pomona. The impression has also gone out that early changes will take place in these offices. There are, however, no official reasons for this conclusion, and no sufficient ground for claiming that the persons named will be appointed. On the contrary, when the appointments come to be made, which will not be soon, it will be found that the successful list will not be the one printed above. Some mistakes have been made in the local recommendations, but it is not too late to rectify them. They will be rectified.

THE Chicago Inter Ocean having advised that Patrick Egan be recalled to explain some dubious points in the Cronin case, the Cleveland Leader says:

We second the motion of the Inter Ocean that Patrick Egan, United States Minister to Chili, be called home to explain his connection with the money which has been traced through Alexander Sullivan's hands into a broker's office. The loyalty of the Inter Ocean to the Republican party is beyond question, and President Harrison need have no fear that he will offend any honest Republican by following its advice. No man mixed up in the affairs of such an organization as the one by whose members Dr. Cronin was murdered is fit to represent the United States at a foreign capital. Call him home.

LORD SALISBURY is represented as having recently made the assertion that he knew of no time within recent years when the peace of Europe was more generally threatened than at present. Unhappy Europe! Its peace is almost always threatened from some quarter or another. How thankful we should be that 8000 miles of ocean rolls between this country and European despotisms.

A CORRESPONDENT who signs himself "Fair Play" has a very pertinent communication in this issue, regarding the action of the Chamber of Commerce in recommending the discontinuance of work on the Government building. Doubtless many of those who hastily voted for this resolution are now thoroughly ashamed of themselves.

The latest rumor in regard to trusts is that one is to be formed at Chicago, with a capital of $500,000,000, to control the coal market.

Lincoln and Victoria.

(Boston Globe.)

When Robert T. Lincoln had his little tête-à-tête with Queen Victoria the other day, he had no cause to be awed by the presence of majesty. He had the proud consciousness that, though he was the son of an awkward rail-splitter, yet his father was a much bigger man than his father ever was. Robert Lincoln belongs to a more truly royal family than Victoria Guelph.

THEIR GAME.

How the "Family Saloon" is oper-

The family saloon still flourishes in this city, and the indications are that it is to become a permanent thing unless the Police Commissioners sink their petty jealousies and go to work for the city.

One of the most fashionable of these dives has been turned into a kind of bunco-steering shop. For a time it was frequented by young women of semi-respectable caste, but of late, since the closing up of the "cribs" on Alameda street, the lounging has been secured rooms in lodging houses in the immediate neighborhood of this one, and every evening from two to a dozen of these fallen creatures wend their way to the rooms in the rear of the saloon, which are entered by a side door, and spread their nets for fresh fish. The scheme that is worked on the unsuspecting is rather an ingenious one, and may prove a tempting reading for some of the poor fellows who have been "blown in."

From the surroundings one would be led to believe that the "bar-keep" stands in with the female robbers, and if he does not, ask them to divide the "swag" he insists that the gull should be "boozed up" in one of the rear rooms, where drinks of a very poor quality are served at double rates.

The mixer of bad drinks in this particular joint is not a pleasant creature to look upon. His nose is double the normal size, and the cherry blossom on its tip shows that its master has taken great pains in working up the proper amount of red fire. The fellow is given to smiling, and from time to time a customer sets his eyes on him until he leaves the place that smile is with him. His mouth is a study to look at, for there are only a few teeth and they are set like tusks, and a contemplation thereof would give any ordinary person the nightmare.

The other evening a couple of citizens, whose business it is to come times penetrate into dark and devious places (who have been interviewed by THE TIMES), and who had heard some very ugly stories about the den, walked in and asked for "the drinks." While the grinning bar-keeper was preparing them, one of the twins asked: "Can we get a private room?" "No," said the mixer of poison, a cunning look coming into his watery eyes, "they are all full just now."

"No chance to get acquainted with some of the girls who are having such a gay time back there?" asked one of the visitors, jerking his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of the back rooms, which seemed to be full of very jolly women.

The barkeeper's grin remained on his face, but he pretended not to hear the last remark. He seemed to be very busy with the drinks.

When the seekers after knowledge sub rosa entered the den one of them placed a four-bit piece on the counter, and while they were drinking the vile decoction the barkeeper made the change and placed a two-bit piece in change in front of the drinkers. The gentleman who had put the four-bit piece down picked up the change and placed it in his pocket. The two then turned to leave the place and had reached the door when a distinctly heard two raps on the counter. They both turned, and the men who had treated said:

"Well, I thought I paid you for those drinks. I hope you will excuse me." The barkeeper grinned and up and looked at the two men.

One of the men said: "The taps on the bar were not intended for their ears, but they were determined to see the circus out, so they kept straight faces and walked slowly out of the saloon, expecting every moment to have an ugly cut-throat jump on them from some dark recess."

They got out of the "joint" in safety, however, and just as they turned the corner they ran right up against a couple of stylishly-dressed young fellows who were waiting for a car. One of the men said: "The other man was arrested at being caught issuing from the side door of a low place, and as they seemed anxious to strike up an acquaintance, the adventurers whirled around and joined them, and in less than ten seconds the four were chatting merrily, and they had known each other since infancy."

It did not take the information seekers a great while to unravel the whole scheme. The two girls were in one of the back rooms when the detectives entered the saloon, and the double rap on his cheek was the signal for the party understood by the parties immediately concerned.

"A couple of suckers, girls; go for 'em," and the girls got out just in time to pick the "suckers" up. But they were not armed with nets strong enough to catch the cunning news-seekers of this day and age, and the two soon dropped the intended victims. The damsels had all the appearance of being young married women out for a lark, and had the investigators been the suckers they were picked up for, somebody would have been robbed that night.

Evolutionists.

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Being requested by many to divide the writers on evolution according to their various teachings, with your kind permission I will do so, placing them in three classes. First, the Theists, who believe in a personal God, as the creator of all things; such as Sir John Herschel, George Myer, Prof. Gray, St. Augustine, St. Thomas. Second, the Atheists, who deny a personal God, and declare that such as Buckner, Vogt, Haeckel and their disciples. Third class, agnostics, who neither admit nor openly deny a divine Creator, but call him the Unknown, such as Huxley, Bain and Tyndal. According to the primary sense of the word create, God did not create animals, plants, not even the body of man, but is supposed to have produced them from preexisting material. "Let the earth and waters bring forth." Now, the question is, was this indirect creation, or was it direct? Did it develop from lower to higher forms, as the chicken from the egg? I believe with St. Augustine, who in his work on Genesis says: "As the seed is sown, it must first be a grain, then a stalk, then a sheaf, then a field, then a tree, so also the world, after its creation by God, contains all the germs of the various forms of life that were afterwards produced." I hold man's soul as an exception, each soul being direct from God's hands.

A Lunatic Gouges Out His Eyes—Remarkably Fine Ball Game at Sacramento—Other Coast News.

By Telegram to THE TIMES.

ELLENSBURG (Wash.), June 16.—[By the Associated Press.] Heavy forest fires are prevailing on the east side of the Cascade Mountains, destroying vast quantities of fine timber. The roar of flames can be heard for miles, and during the night the whole heaven is illumined. Lumbermen say many millions of feet of lumber will be destroyed. Several small bridges along the line of the Northern Pacific have been destroyed.

BASE-BALL.

Games on the California Diamond and in the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—[By the Associated Press.] The game today at Halght street between the San Francisco and Oakland was an average exhibition of ball. After the first inning, in which Oakland scored once, they seemed to give the "Frisco" everything their own way. Features of the game were some very pretty double plays. In the first inning a fine double play was made by Donahue, Powers and Hanley, putting Smalley out at second and Hardie out at first. The first half of the fifth inning was nearly ended and two men were out when the Oakland became rattled by a series of wild throws and a combination of errors, and the San Francisco gained five runs. This was the decisive inning of the game. Score: San Francisco, 7; Oakland, 4.

FINE GAME AT SACRAMENTO.

SACRAMENTO, June 16.—The Sacramento defeated the Stocktons today in a fine game of ball. Seigler, the Sacramento's new pitcher, did great work, and up to the ninth inning only two hits were recorded off him. His support was first-class, and for eight successive innings the Stocktons were white-washed. In the ninth a muff by Seigler, scored for him by Seina, Howard and Behan gave the Stocktons their only three runs. Harper was a trifle wild, but struck out 10 of the Sacramento. The Capital City boys did splendid batting in the fifth and sixth innings, making nine runs. Score: 11 to 3.

CHANGES AT SACRAMENTO.

SACRAMENTO, June 16.—Sylvester, ex-captain of the Sacramento, will be released on account of his poor work in the field. Two players, with records of being years of baterra, are en route to this city from the East to join the Sacramento.

EASTERN GAMES.

COLUMBUS, June 16.—Columbus-Kansas City game was called in the third inning on account of rain. The score standing 2 to 0 in favor of Columbus.

BROOKLYN, June 16.—Brooklyn, 3; Cincinnati, 4.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Athletics, 5; St. Louis, 10.

A Fisherman Drowned.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—Early this morning the tug Vileste left here for a morning fishing trip to the Cordell fishing banks, 15 miles north of the city. After being out three or four hours the sea became so rough that the tug was obliged to return. The tug was stopped and a boat lowered, but he was not seen again, although long search was made for his body. The deceased leaves a wife and a young son of age, his wife having died some years ago.

Horrible Case of Insanity.

MILES CITY (Mont.), June 16.—Private Fitzsimmons, Company E, Fifth Cavalry, stationed at Fort Keoch, went insane three weeks ago. He was removed to the guard-house and today he gouged out both of his eyes with his thumbs. One eye he pulled out and threw on the floor. The other hung on his cheek and was removed. The post physician says the disease of his brain is such as to render him insensible to pain, and he appears to suffer none, though he will probably die.

Dempsey Asked to Second Sullivan.

PORTLAND (Or.), June 16.—Jack Dempsey, who is training here for a fight with Lauchlin, at San Francisco in August, received a dispatch from James Waleky of New York, one of Sullivan's backers, today, asking him to second Sullivan in his fight with Kilrain. Near New Orleans, Dempsey fears the southern climate will not agree with him; besides, if he accepts, it will interfere with his training, so he has about concluded not to go.

Seattle Workers Paid Off.

SEATTLE (Wash.), June 16.—One thousand laborers were paid off at the armory today by Capt. Carr, at the head of the same bureau, for work done in the city. The total amount disbursed was over $4000. The saloon are still closed.

Found Dead.

DAWGGETT, June 16.—John Bahten, who was reported missing for some time, has been found dead seven miles from Amboy station. The body was badly decomposed. The remains will be brought here.

A Murderer Convicted.

BAKER CITY (Or.), June 16.—The jury in the case of Clinton Pennington, tried for the unprovoked killing of Charles H. Baker, brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Hit by a Coincidence.

THE owner of a place on Second avenue stood in his barn door on the alley the other day, when a man with a wooden leg and a crutch came along and passed the time of day and finally said:

"Say, I want you to do me a favor. I want to leave my leg with you for a few minutes."

"I want to go around on Second avenue and work a house for half a dollar in money. I've got a pointer that the folks are very sympathetic. If I go with one leg I'm sure of it."

"Very well; just leave your leg here and I'll take care of it."

The wooden substitute was unstraped and handed over, and the cripple went the crutch to help himself down the alley. Five minutes later he rang the doorbell of a house around the avenue, to have it opened by the man he had seen at the barn.

"What—what!" he gasped, in astonishment.

"Very sympathetic family lives here!" quietly replied the other. "You seem to have met with a sad loss, and I'm anxious to help you. Here is a wooden leg which may fit you."

The leg was handed over, the man sat down on the steps and gazed at it, and as he got up and stumped through the gate he said to himself: "I've heard of coincidences ever since I was knee-high to a hop-toad, but this is the first one that ever hit me with both feet at once!"

No Doubt About His Malady.

(Old City Herald.)

There is no doubt about the malady which has evidently been having the hay fever. He is reported to be engaged to five grass-widows.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

The Common-sense of It.

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I think all fair-minded, unprejudiced men must commend your position on the Government building.

The persistent howl to "stop work" kept up by the Tribune for the past week or two had little effect except to further disgust sensible people with that frothy sheet (if that were possible), but now that the Chamber of Commerce has seen fit to half way commit itself to the very unbusiness-like methods of the editor thereof, it is time a general protest was expressed.

What a spectacle is presented us by what is supposed to be a body of our representative business men urging the Government to do that which not one of them as an individual would think one moment of doing.

say, there cannot be, certainly there never has been, a strong, stable, well-ordered state, without the family, the school and the church. And the family, the school and the church have never approximated its best without the support of the other three institutions. We cannot dispense with any one of them. The city lieth four-square. It is only the educated, moral and religious sense that gives sacredness to the home, of authority or dignity to law. Legal enactments do not govern a mob, and they would shoot down the officers appointed to execute them. Gambetta, by far the greatest statesman, brought to the surface in France during and immediately subsequent to her recent war with Germany, half discouraged in his own attempt to form the present French Republic, acknowledged to our Senator Sumner that the chief reason for the chronic instability of the political institutions of France was the want of an educated, controlling, moral and religious sense among her people, which made her patriotism but a sentimental spasm. Gambetta gave it as his abiding conviction that faith in God and immortality, strong religious conviction, is an element of character so fundamental, is so necessary to official integrity that the political institutions of State are imperilled; and I think that is good reasoning. At all events, I do not suppose there is present an intelligent person who doubts that, if, with all of the conceded attractions of our city, its churches were closed for five years, real estate would depreciate a hundred per cent., and grass would grow in our principal streets. And yet there are thousands of men who are profoundly gratified by every proof that the state, the home, or the school is in good condition and they even spend money freely for the beautifying of their own homes and for the education of their children, but who strangely fail to see that the church is equally worthy of their confidence and support, because equally a corner-stone of the great human fabric, and its influence equally necessary to the beautiful happiness and a well-ordered character.

Now, if any one supposes that I secularize the church by associating it with the other three great institutions of humanity, and making each of them necessary to the others, and each indispensable in securing for man the best human happiness, he misapprehends me. Instead of secularizing the church, I divinize the state, the home, and the school. Not one of these great nurseries of human character can be spared. They are alike divine—an idea very different from that commonly entertained, viz.: That we may run our state, our home or our school very much as we like; that God is not particularly interested in them; that he gives his special thought and blessing to the church, holding the influence of that to be humanity's chief need. Indeed, a man may be devoted to the State, to the home and utterly indifferent to the school, and yet, faithful to the common church idea, he will save his soul. In short, there are vast departments of life with which God has little to do, and from which He can well be spared. In our entire immaterial structure there is only one small compartment that is specially adapted to, or in special need of, the guiding, life-giving influence of the Eternal Spirit, and that compartment will be open on Sunday in the church. But in Christian and in heathen lands has it not been demonstrated that thou and thousands of times that even the grace of God and all the sacraments cannot make a high type of Christian of one whose thought, tastes, aspirations and whole inner life have not been moulded and informed by the home and the church?

Now, the strange fact, and a fact of momentous practical significance, is that the state, the school and the home not only assume, but unconditionally proclaim and practically recognize this great truth, while the church denies it. The appeal of the state is to the intelligence of the citizen. A republic is possible among enlightened people. In the home, and at every hour in the day, and in connection with everything, it is the instinctive purpose of the parent to stimulate and call forth the dormant powers of the child's mind. The school has no other end in view than to teach the child the rules of grammar, the fact of geography, the mathematical problem, the chemical analysis, the entire curriculum is used as a stimulant to thought. Every day, and at every recitation, the student is encouraged to do his own thinking; to be independent; to work out every problem for himself. And yet at this very point the popular church arrays herself diametrically against the other three great institutions of humanity. She says—ten thousand thousand times she has said—that there is ground so sacred that thereon the exercise of reason is not only impertinent, but sacrilegious; thus not only canonizing credulity, but directly opening the way for superstition and absurdity. Do we not see that in the great surging, outside world, and especially where temptation lures, and extension for wrong-doing is earnestly sought, the solemn declaration made in the sacred name of religion, and by the authority of the church, nay, by the church herself, that in connection with the highest of all human interests, reason is wholly unworthy, must have a widespread and most pernicious influence. Is it not perfectly clear? On philosophical grounds, is not the church clearly responsible for much of the moral blindness and insensibility which she sincerely deprecates?

The same is true of the essential integrity of human nature. The state assumes it, is obliged to assume it. Republicanism, democracy, is the highest compliment ever paid to man. In so many words, it declares him to be so intelligent, so high-minded, that he is capable of self-government, that he is competent to discover the right, the essential elements of statesmanship and of national well-being for himself and others inclined to righteous political action. The home and the school are equally complimentary. They accept human nature in the germ, and aim only at its unfoldment. They hold that, naturally, man is not only capable of perceiving the true and of doing the right, but that through evolution alone he is susceptible of wonderful improvement. The church denies this in toto, affirming that human nature is utterly corrupt and wholly inclined to wit, so corrupt and so worthless that here and now it is foredoomed to eternal perdition.

idea of salvation by character, of standing on our merits before God, of there being taken for what we are personally, precisely as we are here. A state of mind that is here held to involve the very highest conception of morality is a total perversion of the fundamental principle of Christianity. Now, it does not require the genius of a philosopher to perceive that in religion's name to teach that high personal worth is unnecessary for salvation, indeed that the attempt to develop and exemplify it is repugnant to the whole doctrine and spirit of Christianity, is to lower the standard of character and disintegrate the foundations of morality.

Therefore, I insist of any that we stand with the other three great institutions of humanity. Our city lieth four square. We hold that religion is a part of, and essential to, the mighty groundswell of the race, as is civil government and education; and thus religion, do you not see, that we place religion and the church on a foundation as indestructible as the race itself—a foundation incomparably more adamant than could be given it as an importation into human affairs, an element foreign to human nature. Convince us that Christianity is but a patchwork, "an act to amend an act," and you convince us that antecedently there had been most injudicious legislation. You undermine our faith in Christianity itself.

And this brings us to our last thought. We worship a God who does not make mistakes; who has no occasion to recast His plans, who has never been surprised by the magnitude and complexity of a scheme upon which He inadvertently entered. Our God is the unerring wisdom, the eternal power, the all-encompassing love, the all-inspiring life. Our church is in no sense an expression of alarm, a memorial of a terrible disaster in the government of God. Over our heads, in letters of gold, we have expressed the feeling with which we regard life with all its trials, even all its sins, death with all its agonies, and eternity with all its ineffable realities—considering all, and accepting all, we yet sing as we are sure we may. Glory to God in the highest. Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear not, for God is with me. His staff, they comfort me. For us, and we say it reverently, and yet with profound gratitude, unwavering confidence and abounding joy—with us, it is not a God of hazardous experiments, overwhelming surprises, unsuccessful expedients, partial success, and appalling failures, over which angels may well weep, and the lost will mourn forever. O no! O no! For us it is a God who understands and discharges all the responsibilities, while He wears all the honors of His ineffable Godhead—it is such a God as we need, and all His works and ways that from the depths of our hearts we sing glory to God in the highest.

A pleasant feature of the occasion was brought out by Mr. McDaniel just before the services closed. He called attention to an elegant Bible lying on the stand, a present to Dr. Fay from his former congregation in England, bearing on the inside of the cover the following illuminated address:

This copy of the Holy Scriptures is presented to the Rev. Eli Fay, D.D., for use in his new church at Los Angeles, Cal., U.S.A., by the congregation of the Upper Chapel, Sheffield, England, of which chapel he was pastor for seven years. His numerous Sheffield friends desire, by this gift, to express their high appreciation of his faithful services as a Christian minister and a personal friend.

The address is signed, on behalf of the congregation, by nine trustees and eight members of the Congregational Committee.

LOST WANDERERS.

DR. TALMAGE ON PEOPLE WHO
LOSE THEIR WAY.

Hagar and Ishmael—The Weak Arm of Woman Battling with the World—A Mother's Lessons—
Come and Drink!

BROOKLYN, June 16.—[Authorized
Report for THE LOS ANGELES TIMES.]
The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., preached at the Tabernacle today.
A vast congregation filled the spacious building to overflowing. After making an exposition of scripture, the pastor gave out the hymn beginning:

"Glory to God on high, Let heaven and earth reply,"

which the great body of worshippers sang with majestic effect. The subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse was:
"People Who Have Lost Their Way." He took for his text: "And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and she went and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink"—Gen. xxi, 19. The eloquent preacher said:

Morning breaks upon Beer-sheba.
There is an early stir in the house of old Abraham. There has been trouble among the domestics. Hagar, an assistant in the household, and her son, a brisk lad of 16 years, have become impudent and insolent, and Sarah, the mistress of the household, puts her foot down very hard, and says that they will have to leave the premises.
They are packing up now. Abraham, knowing that the journey before him will be long and arduous, and that he and across desolate places, in the kindness of his heart sets about putting up some bread and a bottle with water in it. It is a very plain lunch that Abraham provides, but I warrant you there would have been enough of it had they not lost their way. "Goodbye with you," said old Abraham, as he gave the lunch to Hagar, and a good many charges as to how she should conduct the journey. Ishmael, the boy, I suppose, bounded away in the morning light. Boys always like a change. Poor Ishmael! He has no idea of the disasters that are ahead of him. Hagar gives one long, lingering look on the familiar place where she had spent so many happy days, each scene associated with the pride and joy of her heart, young Ishmael.
The scorching noon comes on. The air is stifling, and moves across the desert with insufferable suffocation.
Ishmael, the boy, begins to complain,
and lies down, but Hagar rouses him up, saying nothing about her own weariness or the sweltering heat; for mothers can endure anything. Trudge—trudge—trudge. Crossing the dead level of the desert, how wearily and slowly the miles slip. A tamarind that seemed hours ago to stand only just a little ahead, inviting the travelers to come under its shadow, now is as far off as ever, or seemingly so.
Night drops upon the desert, and the travelers are pillowless. Ishmael, very weary, I suppose, instantly falls asleep. Hagar, as the shadows of the night begin to lay over each other,
hugs her weary boy to her bosom,
and thinks of the fact that it is her fault that they are in the desert. A star looks out, and every falling tear it kisses with its rays, and earth and lifts the locks from the fevered brow of the boy. Hagar sleeps fitfully, and in her dreams travels over the weary day, and half awakes her son by crying out in her sleep,
"Ishmael! Ishmael!" And so they go on, day after day, and night after night; for they have lost their way.
No path in the shifting sands; no sign in the burning sky. The sack empty of the flour, the water gone from the bottle. What shall she do? As she puts her fainting Ishmael under a stunted shrub of the arid plain, she sees the bloodshot eye, and feels the hot hand, and watches the blood bursting from the cracked tongue, and there is a shriek in the desert of Beer-sheba:
"We shall die! We shall die!" Now, no mother was ever made strong enough to hear her son cry in vain for a drink. Heretofore she had cheered her boy by promising a speedy end of the journey, and even smiled upon him when he felt desperately alone. Now there is nothing to do but place him under a shrub and let him die. She had thought that she would sit there and watch until the spirit of her boy would go away forever, and then she would breathe out her own life upon his silent heart; but as the boy begins to claw his tongue in agony of thirst, and struggle in distortion, and beg his mother to slay him, she cannot endure the spectacle. She puts him under a shrub and goes off a low-shot, and begins to weep until all the desert seems sobbing, and her cry strikes clear through the heavens, and an angel of God comes out on a cloud and looks down upon the appalling grief, and cries: Hagar, what aileth thee?
She looks up, and she sees the angel pointing to a well of water, where she fills the bottle for the lad. Thank God! Thank God!

I learn from this oriental scene, in the first place, what a sad thing it is when people do not know their place,
and get too proud for their business.
Hagar was an assistant in that household, but she wanted to rule there.
She ridiculed and jeered until her son, Ishmael, got the same tricks. She dashed out her own happiness and threw Sarah into a great fret; and if she had stayed much longer in that household she would have upset calm Abraham's equilibrium. My friends, one-half of the trouble in the world today comes from the fact that people do not know their place; or, finding their place, will not stay in it. When we come into the world there is always a place ready for us. A place for Abraham. A place for Sarah. A place for Hagar. A place for Ishmael.
A place for you, and a place for me.
Our first duty is to find our sphere, our second is to keep it. We may be born in a sphere far off from the one for which God finally intends us.
Sextus V. was born on the low ground,
and was a swineherd; God called him up to wave a scepter. Ferguson spent his early days in looking after the sheep; God called him up to look after stars, and be a shepherd watching the flocks of light on the hillside of heaven. Hogarth began by engraving spewer pots; God raised him to stand in the enchanted realm of a painter.
The shoemaker's bench held Bloomfield for a little while; but God called him to sit in the chair of a philosopher and Christian scholar. The soap-boiler of London could not keep his son in that business, for God had decided that Hawley was to be one of the greatest astronomers of England. On the other hand, we may be born in a sphere a little higher than that for which God intends us. We may be born in a castle, and play in a costly conservatory, and feed high-bred pointers, and angle for gold fish in artificial ponds,

and be familiar with princes; yet God
may have fitted us for a carpenter's shop, or dentist's forceps, or a weaver's shuttle, or a blacksmith's forge. The great thing is to find just the sphere, for which God intended us, and then to occupy that sphere, and occupy it forever. Here is a man God fashioned to make a plow. There is a man
God fashioned to make a constabulary.
The man who makes the plow just as honorable as the man who makes the constabulary, provided he makes the plow as well as the other man makes the constabulary. There is a woman who was made to fashion a robe, and yonder one intended to be a queen and wear it. It seems to me that in the one case as in the other, God appoints the sphere; and the needle is just as respectable in His sight as the scepter. I do not know but that the world would long ago have been saved if some of the men out of the ministry were in it, and some of those who are in it were out of it. I really think that one-half of the trouble of the world comes from two quarters—those who have not found their sphere, and those who, having found it, are not willing to stay there. How many are struggling for a position a little higher than that which God intended

JUNE THE 17TH.

NOTABLE EVENTS THAT HAVE OCCURRED ON THIS DATE.

The Battle of Bunker Hill—Not All Who Fought There Were Heroes
—John Wesley—Marshal Villars
—John Sobieski, King of Poland.

Today is the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. To complete the blockade of Boston, Col. Prescott with 100 men and two pieces of artillery, was ordered to occupy Bunker's Hill. On the nightfall of June 16th, Bunker's Hill was an eminence just within the peninsula of Charlestown, and commanded the northern road from Boston. By mistake, Prescott passed further to Breed's Hill at the southern end of the peninsula, and much near Boston. In the morning the British were surprised to find that the enemy were thus advantageously posted, and opened their batteries upon the Americans from the town and the shipping. But the provincials kept on constructing earthworks, and by noon the breastwork had been carried nearly to the water, and cannons were mounted in such a position as to be very troublesome to the British shipping and garrisons. Accordingly 3000 troops were landed on the peninsula where the Americans were without order and quite unprepared for an attack. Some few Hampshire troops, under Stark, were posted to the left of the unfinished breastwork. The British advanced at half past one in the afternoon, supported by heavy fire from their batteries. As the provincials were short of ammunition they reserved their fire until the enemy were within 100 yards of them, when a volley was discharged with the deadly accuracy of marksmen. The British regulars retreated to the landing place. A rally and a second charge encountered the same deadly volley, followed by a second retreat. Intimidated by defeat Clinton ordered the provincials to be set on fire, and directed a third attack to be made upon the redoubt. As the ammunition of the provincials was giving out, and the British artillery stationed at the unfinished end of the redoubt swept it from the Americans' retreat, they retreated before the bayonet charge of the enemy. Stark and his New Hampshire men kept up a hot fight till the redoubt was taken, when the whole force retreated across Charlestown Neck. The British loss was 1000 killed and wounded, and the Americans 450, but unfortunately the British did not follow among the slain. The British War Office was so dissatisfied at the conduct of the battle that Gage was removed from the command. Bunker Hill was much less thought of by Americans then than now; all those engaged in it are now not heroes, and some of the officers were cashiered for cowardice.

JOHN WESLEY,
the founder of Methodism, was born at Epworth, England, June 17, 1703. He graduated at Oxford with distinction, became a deacon in 1725, a Fellow of Lincoln's College in 1728, and was ordained a priest of the Church of England in 1728. He became deeply impressed with the necessity of reformation, and he returned to his studies, and at Oxford associated with his brother and others, who from their devotion were termed in derision "Methodists" and "The Godly Club." John Wesley adopted habits of great austerity, and studied and fasted to such an extent that he seriously injured his health. In 1735 he sailed for his brother Charles went to Georgia as missionaries to the Indians, making the acquaintance of the Moravians on the voyage. On his return to Europe in 1738 Wesley visited Count Zinzendorf, and the religious revival began. He separated from the Moravians in 1740. Prior to this time he had commenced holding open-air meetings at Bristol, England, and laid the foundation of the Methodist Church. He possessed great powers of endurance, traveled extensively on horseback, continuing the use of his feet, and he has been delivered several sermons in one day. He died in 1791, at the age of 88.

MARSHALL VILLARS.

After the great Conde, Turenne and Luxembourg, the ablest general of JOHN XIV. was Marshal Villars, who was born in 1653. Entering the army, he rose to the rank of Lieutenant-general in 1693. His victories over the allies on the Rhine in 1702, gained him the rank of Marshal of France. Although defeated by the Duke of Marlborough at Malplaquet, the losses of the allies were immense. Villars's last services were rendered in the Italian campaign of 1734, where the old Marshal was preparing to cross the Po, and sword in hand charged at the head of his column, followed by the King of Sardinia. The Austrians were driven in, and the Marshal was complimented by the King, "Sir," said Villars in reply, "these are the last sparks of my life; thus at departing I take my leave of it." Death had already seized his prey, and the old Marshal died at Turin, June 17, 1754, at the age of 81.

JOHN SOBIESKI,
the celebrated King of Poland, was born in 1629. He became a general at a very early age, and gained numerous victories over the Cossacks, Tartars, Russians and Turks, and was made a prince, marshal of Poland in 1665, in recognition of his services. In 1674 Sobieski was elected King as John III. When the Turks with an immense army were besieging Vienna in 1683, Sobieski gained a brilliant victory and delivered the city. He died June 17, 1696. He is regarded as one of the purest patriots and greatest heroes Poland ever produced.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

The Board of Education will meet this evening.

There is an undelivered telegram at the Western Union Telegraph Office for D. Wells.

The Nadeau has just put in a new heater and condenser, which was recently invented by a local engineer.

"King Rex" has called a meeting of the Antiques and Horribles for 7:30 this evening to organize for the Fourth of July.

All of the trains to the sea coast were crowded yesterday, and bathers were as numerous as sand fleas at Monterey.

Tomorrow the directors of the Santa Fé roads of Southern California will meet in this city, when some important business will be transacted.

The third annual commencement exercises of the McPherson Academy will take place at the First Presbyterian Church this evening.

Jacob Haas of the firm of Hellman, Haas & Co. of this city, died in San Francisco yesterday. He was a native of Reckendorf, Bavaria, and in his 49th year.

There will be an interesting meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Prof. Keith of San Francisco will address the meeting.

Ten carloads of excursionists went to San Pedro yesterday morning on the 9 o'clock train, the occasion being the dedication of the new Catholic Church at that place.

Two Chinamen were arrested on Fort street last night at 10 o'clock, by Officer Goodman, for violating the ill ordinance. They were locked up for the night.

Ex-Police Officer Santiago Arguello was yesterday presented with a fine pair of Mexican spurs by Fred Engelhardt as a mark of his appreciation for favors received.

The Pacific Review, to be edited by F. E. Holloway and published by Edwards & Mercer, with Charles Frederick Holder among the contributors, is to be issued July 7th.

The Arcadia opening at Santa Monica last Saturday night was a grand success. There were a number of Los Angeles people present, and dancing was kept up until a late hour.

John Imacel, a drunken man, was arrested on the East Side, yesterday afternoon, by Officer McKeag, and sent over to the central station to be locked up on a charge of indecent exposure.

Paul Squari, alias Cows Well, an Italian, was arrested on Temple street between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday morning by Officer Houston and locked up on a charge of petty larceny. Squari was making away with a garden hose.

The following were the arrivals at the County Jail yesterday: John Doe Williams, San Francisco, forger; Mrs. Jessie Butler and Mrs. Minnie Johnson, insane, city. There were 11 prisoners in the tanks at 9 o'clock last evening.

R. C. Guirado writes to THE TIMES as follows: "The Tribune of June 16th published a long paragraph in regard to my suing the Los Angeles Cable Company headed, 'He Wanted a Ride,' all of which is a base falsehood, except wherein it says that I sued the company."

E. Patchly, a drunken man, was having a little celebration by himself on Fort street, between Third and Fourth, yesterday afternoon, and wound up the festivities by firing off his revolver a couple of times.

Van Cleve took Patchly in and locked him up on a charge of discharging firearms.

Mrs. Jesse H. Butler came into the police station yesterday morning to complain about her husband, and as she acted very queerly, and had been locked up once or two before as insane, she was taken in charge and sent to the County Jail for safe-keeping. Her husband tried to get her released yesterday afternoon, but as Sheriff Aguirre could not be found she was kept locked up for the night.

Mrs. Johnson, a crazy woman, created something of a sensation at the Southern Pacific depot yesterday morning, by removing her shoes and stocking, saying that she was preparing to take a bath at Santa Monica. Officer Appel took her in charge, when the patrol wagon was sent for and she was taken to the County Jail. Mrs. Johnson lost her husband recently, and has since been mentally unbalanced. She will be kept in the jail for a few days, and if she does not show some improvement, will be examined, and committed to the asylum at Stockton.

SANTA MONICA.

Improvements and Preparations for the Summer.

SANTA MONICA, June 15.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Santa Monica is just now taking a long step forward in the direction of multiplied attractions and greatly-increased comforts for the multitudes who resort here. The beach yesterday looked as if a cyclone had swept it. The numerous and unsightly structures, which had in the past aggregated about the foot of the bluff until they were an odorous disfigurement of the scene, were suddenly assaulted and razed to the ground.

The long-impending storm has at last descended, and the consequence is a wholesale cleansing and purification. The ground has been cleared so that new and commodious pavilions and extensive accommodations for the entertainment of the public may occupy the ground. One of these pavilions, capable of sheltering from the sun 2000 people, is now complete, and furnished with refreshment tables for hundreds, for which no charge will be made. This structure is to be duplicated at another point a hundred yards distant. Between these pavilions is located the Santa Monica bathhouse, which, in the hands of its present manager, Frank Ellis, has been extensively enlarged and in all ways improved. A fine plunge bath, 20 newly-painted rooms, with every facility for hot baths, and 250 neat apartments for the accommodation of ocean bathers, combine to make this a first-class establishment, worthy of the place and its patronage.

Among the needed improvements going on are the opening of a carriage road from the bluff down to the beach, and along the seashore to the cañon, and the piping of water along the beach under the bluff. At certain places camping privileges, under uniform restrictions, will be granted for a merely nominal sum, enough to pay the expense of needed improvements, and the enforcement of rigid sanitary regulations.

Nothing is being left undone which will supplement the natural charms of this locality and render it the most attractive and comfortable seaside resort on the Pacific Coast. Under the enterprising management of the present lessee of this beach property, Mr. Spillman of the Los Angeles County Railroad, the public may be assured of the immediate completion of this work. A number of swimming matches and various engaging amusements on a large scale are among the promised attractions of the present season. Senator Jones and party, numbering in all 14 persons, arrived last evening, and are today quietly resting in the Senator's suburban mansion overlooking the sea.

The Hotel Arcadia has opened today under most favorable auspices. A goodly number of guests are already booked, and others have engaged accommodations. The hotel in its new dress is as attractive as when first built.

Oxygen, Compound Oxygen, Nitrous Oxide, and other inhalations used in all DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

We have introduced the compound oxygen treatment with our system of practice in the cure of Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Dyspepsia, Insomnia, Sore Throat, Catarrh, Rheumatism and Nervous Prostration, while only the most improved methods are employed in all female complaints.

As is well known, Oxygen is the life-giving principle in the air we breathe, and Ozone in the air imparts that happy and buoyant feeling after thunder storms. Persons often require more oxygen than is in the air around them, and cause doctors and windows to be opened, tear off collars, loosen the waist, and call for a fan to displace the stifling and bring fresher air or more oxygen.

Dr. M. Hilton Williams—DAN BIR: I have been contemplating for some time past making a statement of my case and the benefit I have derived from your treatment, remembering how glad I would have been could I have seen something of the kind from a person in the city, to whom I could have referred, when I first came to Los Angeles from my home in New York State.

I had been suffering for several years with what various physicians in the East pronounced "chronic ulcerated laryngitis," and spent considerable time at the Clifton Sanitarium, and employed the best medical skill I could find, all without any permanent benefit, and as a last resort our family physician recommended Los Angeles. For a time I improved, and then I began to go backward and all my former symptoms returned.

Through a medical friend I was induced to try your treatment, but persevered, as I felt almost desperate and knew of nothing else to turn to. My throat trouble being aggravated by a serious stomach difficulty, made it very obstinate to deal with, but at last, after persevering for a time with your remedies, I consider I am permanently cured. If this will be of any value to you, or any one, please use it; also refer any one to my mother, my husband or myself. Very truly yours, MRS. J. D. WILEY, Los Angeles, Cal.

ATTENTION! Cheap Land - Good Land.

Dr. E. T. Barber of Lancaster, Antelope Valley, Los Angeles county, Cal., offers 3,000 acres of land for sale, in tracts of 50 acres and upward, at $5 to 50 per acre, with liberal terms and title guaranteed.

This valley has raised the premium wheat of the world; sugar beets at the rate of 213 tons to the acre; barley hay, three tons; eight crops of alfalfa in one year; barberries seven inches in diameter, and is competent to compete with Spain for raisins, and France for champagne.

All this land offered can be covered with mountain water, and has good surface and artesian water, and much of it has a subsoil irrigation.

The railroad facilities are good; the Southern Pacific Railroad now crosses it, and three other great railroads are expected to do so in the near future.

Climate good—no cyclones, blizzards, fogs or malarial.

Antelope Valley is the hope of the poor, a boon to men of moderate means, and a bonanza to a valuable business man. Send for map and description.
